

Abstract

A computer mouse and a method for warning a user to rest during operation are provided. The computer mouse includes a first timer and a warning device. A first predetermined period of time is set in the computer mouse. The first timer monitors a period of time when the user operates the computer mouse. The warning device is enabled when the operating period is longer than the first predetermined period of time. The warning device is disabled when the user stops operating the computer mouse.